

To Whom It May Concern,

Peyton Wasson started working for us last November. She was very easy to train; she executed her job to perfection, exceeding expectations right away. She started as a cashier and within a few weeks, she was in charge of multiple job functions, including closing the tills on nights she worked. She then learned ordering and receiving, making her an effective employee able to fill in any role. Her eagerness to learn and willingness to get what needed to be done in an efficient and effective manner make her a valuable asset. I would recommend her to anyone as an exceptional candidate.

Some of her other qualities are as follows: her personality is kind, and she works well with others. She was never late, and if she had a conflict, she followed the correct procedures to get herself excused without incident. She is also determined to get things done right and is not afraid to ask questions. If you have any other questions, please feel free to reach out to me personally.

Sincerely,

Troy Heusel
